KENTUCKY HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY-THE SEAson .- We are requested by the Executive Committee of the Kentucky Horticultural Society to say that, for a week or two past, they have been adjourning from Saturday to Saturday hoping that, at each succeeding meeting, they would be able to announce a day when the appearance of strawberries and the blow of hardy annual flowers would warrant the commencement of the Society's weekly exhibi-On Saturday last, after consultation, Saturthe 7th of June, was fixed upon for the first exhibition, to come off at Mozart Hall at the usual hour, 10 o'clock. We are enabled to state upon the authority of the Executive Committee that the crop of apples was never more promising; that all other fruits which have survived the hard winter and cold spring look very well, and that, with the exception of peaches (the crop of which is light), the general fruit crop will exceed an average.

DEPARTURE OF THE FIREMEN.-Yesterday fortythree members of the Mechanic fire company, of this city, departed on the mailboat for the city of Balti more. They were accompanied to the wharf by the several fire companies, and the scene presented was one of the most imposing and interesting character. The Mechanic boys were attired in beautiful and g uniforms, and will prove honorable and worthy specimens of Kentucky. Mr. Robert F. Baird accompanied the delegation to act as their spokesman. A more eloquent and fitting selection could not have been made.

The New Albany Saxehorn band accompanie the Mechanics. The members of Plato's and the Continental band were present on the wharf at the time of departure.

THE U. S. REVENUE CUTTER .- There were eighteen offers for the new cutter, the most of which were splendid models, and rendered the decision more difficult. The board of examiners reported that all the models evinced much talent and skill, and concluded by recommending those presented by the following: W. H. Webb, New York: Page & Allen, Portsmouth, Va.; and J. Westervelt, New York. in Mr. Ford's house, the young lady very courage-Secretary Cobb awarded the contract to Mr. Webb. THE UNITARIAN CONFERENCE AT ALTON.are requested to state that the accounts given by the St. Louis Intelligencer of the difficulty in the conference is incorrect. The objectionable resolution were not reported back by the committee and adopt ed, as the Intelligencer states, but were entirely withdrawn, and in place of them a statement was presented of very different character. With this statement, as a statement, Rev. Dr. Eliot said he could concur; and he withdrew from the Conference not because he could not assent to the opinions there in expressed, but because he felt that the Conference transcended its limits in making any statement.

The newspapers of New York are naturally enough in a terrible stew over the Burdell case. After doing everything in their power to shield the guilty by fixing and riveting suspicion upon the incent, they are filled with blank amazement at the mystery which, favored by two months of misguided effort, now laughs at pursuit. Our contemporaries of Gotham are very much in the situation of the dog in the fable, after he had dropped his meat in the ater, and caught at the shadow. We hope they ill learn wisdom from experience.

BY LYRA ST. LEON

It was early in the morning when Emma died. The stars lad just grown pale in the sky, and as we gathered around her with tears and sighs, her spirit went out almost without our knowing it—even while we were pressing our good-bye kisses on her forehead.

There came in the quiet of early morn A voice with the falling leaves, Low as the wail of an unstrung lute When the wind-spirit o'er it grieves All the bright stars had closed their eyes In the blue sky at break of day, And sadly we felt our beautiful one Was quietly passing away.

The voice had call'd! the solumn voice, And we knew that her life was o'er, And slowly and sadly we gather'd around To look on her face once more— A shadow came o'er the parian brow And her blue eyes closed for aye, E'en while our kisses were striving to woo The bright angel spirit to stay. RIVER AND STEAMBOAT MATTERS.

PORTLAND TELEGRAPH LINE. Office at Portland, Delime's Drug Store, on the wharf.
Office at Shippingport, in the Canal Office. Office at Louisville, Durrett's Clothing Store, corner Fourth and Water streets.

The river commenced falling on Saturday evening, and last evening there were only 61/4 feet water on the falls.

The R. J. Ward for New Orleans .- We need only announce that this magnificent steamer leaves for New Orleans to-day. No boat on the river has a higher reputation than the Ward. Capt. S. P. Miller is her cammander, and Messrs. Smith and Grey are the clerks. The Ward will start from Portland. She went over the falls yesterday.

The new steamer C. W. Dorance leaves for New Orleans to-day.

Tne Baltic, Capt. Meekin, Mr. G. P. Jouett clerk, will arrive to-day and leave for New Orleans to-morrow evening.

For St. Louis .- The Fashion, Capt. John M. Martin, is the packet for St. Louis to-day. She is a good and substantial boat, and Capt. Martin is a guarantee that passengers will be well provided for. Her attentive clerks, Messrs. Smith and De Hart, have our thanks for a memorandum.

The W. A. Eaves, Capt. Duncan, is the packet for Evansville this evening.

New Patents.—The following patents have bee ssued the past week:

James P. Arnold, Louisville-improvement in ordage machinery.

W. T. Gill, Henderson, Ky.-improvement in achines for redressing mill-stones.

Harvey R. Wolfe, Louisville-improved device or allowing play to the gearing of circular saws. Wm. Vogt and John G. Klink, Louisville-improved device for the manufacture of shirt studs and buttons with convenient despatch.

MONUMENT TO THE AUTHOR OF "HOME, SWEET HOME."-We notice that some public-spirited citizens of Boston have set on foot a project for the erection of a monument to John Howard Payne. The suggestion is received with applause by the press, and will doubtless be carried out with graceful promptitude. Mr. Payne passed the early years of his chequered life in Boston, and it is fitting that some tangible memorial of him should adorn the city on which his memory sheds so sweet a lustre.

THE EAGLE FOUNDRY .- The largest manufacturing establishment in the city will be, when completed, the Eagle Foundry of Messrs. Wallace, Lithgow, & Co., on the corner of Main and Clay streets. We have had the pleasure of examining the extensive works, under the care of Mr. J. Henry Thomas. The foundry will employ one hundred and seventyfive hands, and will prove one of the most valuable of our many tributaries to the manufacturing interests of the city.

WHAT CONSTITUTES A BUSHEL?-The New York Corn Exchange is disturbed by the recent State legislation. It has been customary to allow 56 pounds of corn to the bushel, and sellers generally refuse to give more. However, by an act passed during the late session of the New York Legislature, and which was to have taken effect on the 16th ult., it was decreed that 58 pounds should thenceforward constitute a bushel. Most buyers contend for this amount.

ACCIDENT .- On Saturday afternoon a young lady, returning form a ride on horseback, was thrown from her horse on Jefferson street, between Eighth and Ninth; but, we are happy to state, without receiving any serious injury. After stopping a few minutes ously remounted the fractious horse, and, with her escort, cantered off in fine style.

MR. CASSEDAY'S LECTURE.—The audience in attendance at the High School, Saturday evening, was highly delighted with the interesting and instructive lecture of Mr. S. A. Casseday. Unfortunately the place selected for the lecture was a very remote loca tion, and a number of our citizens, who would have been delighted could they have conveniently attended, were prevented from being present.

The subject, "The Coral Island," is one full o interest and combines the marvelous and beautiful in singular combinations. The atoles and barrier reefs rising so mysteriously out of the profound depths of the ocean cannot fail to interest any mind, whilst the brilliancy of coloring exhibited in the coral animals which build these wonderful structures, with the strange, fantastic forms of animated existences sporting in the genial waters of a tropical sea, or, as the poet hath it,

Where with a light and easy motion,
The fair coral sweeps through the clear, deep sea,
And the scarlet and yellow tufts of ocean
Are bending like corn on the upland lea;
And life in rare and beautiful forms
Is sporting amid these bowers of stone, Forms a picture of such exquisite loveliness, and withal so peculiarly characteristic, that it cannot fail to enchain the senses of every one. Mr. C., with pure scientific zeal, corrected the ill-founded error that corals performed any work such as does the bee or the otter; the coral polyp merely secrets lime, and it is a no more laborious operation than the formation of our own bones. The lecture was illustrated

MILITARY ORGANIZATION .- At a meeting of our new military company, held Saturday night in the circuit court room, the following officers and committees were elected and appointed:

C. D. Pennebaker, Captain.

T. W. Gibson, First Lieutenant.

Alex. Casseday, Second Lieutenant. J. H. Morton Morris, Third Lieutenant.

Committee on Constitution and By-Laws-E. S. Worthington, Noble Butler, T. W. Gibson, and Pat.

Committee on Uniform-James Huber, John D. Pope, Wm. Preston Johnson, and J. A. Beattie. Committee on Arms-W. L. Breckenridge, Henry

Chambers, C. D. Pennebaker, and Ben. M. Ander-

The meeting was largely attended, and a spirit of the utmost enthusiasm pervaded those present. We have now every assurance of the organization of a military company that will reflect credit upon the city. It is to be hoped that there will be many others of the same description.

The members of this company will meet in the circuit court room Wednesday night.

WOOL DUTY .- The Secretary of the Treasury, Howell Cobb, in his recent Treasury circular, has the following in reference to what is to be considered the cost of imported wool, which is to regulate its admission free of duty:

admission free of duty:

In schedule 1 of the tariff act, it will be seen, there is a provision for the admission free of duty of sheep's wool, unmanufactared, of the value of twenty cents per pound or less at the port of exportation. The question has been submitted whether, in estimating the value in such cases at the port of exportation, the expenses of packing, commissions and other charges incident to the shipment of articles for exportation are to be included.

The value referred to in this provision of the law is the current market value or price at which the article in question could be generally purchased per pound, and does not include the charges and expenses mentioned or other charges incurred in the mere shipment or perparation for shipment after purchase.

Commissions and shipping charges are, however, under after purchase.

Commissions and shipping charges are, however, under the laws levying duties on imports, to be added to the foreign market value of imports, as a part of the value on which duties are to be assessed on entry in ports of the United States; but they constitute no part of the value in the foreign market as referred to. That is to say, wool costing twenty cents and under is to be admitted free, but the duty is to be calculated on the 20c plus the shipping and commission charges. This, we are informed by wool dealers, is the rule to be adopted.

Mr. Edwards swears that his information is derived from the personal friends of Mr. Hyde. All these statements, we are informed, are denied by Mrs. Cunningham. Her counsel seem confident that the motion will not prevail, and express the hope that the case will go on before the Surrogate as usual, and be finished without delay. A letter, we are told, has been received from a party not directly connected with the litigation now pending, in which it is alleged that Dr. Burdell was married to a person two years before, and who is still living. Interesting from the Russo-Chinese Frontier.—The Union publishes an interesting letter from Mr. McCollins, written at Irkontsk, in Russia Tartary, on the 4th of March last. This gentleman was appointed last year Consul of the United States at the Amoor river, and is now on his way to his post. He went by the way of Moscow, where he was present at the coronation of the Emperor in August last, and there met the Governor of the province in which his consulate lies. The Governor offered him a and there met the Governor of the province in which his consulate lies. The Governor offered him a conveyance to the shores of the Pacific in his suite, as he was about returning home. Mr. McCollins accepted the offer and was posted across Siberia to Irkontsk, on the shore of Lake Barkal, where they were obliged to winter. He took advantage of this delay to visit the Russian trading town, Kiachta, through which the vast overland trade of Russia with China is conducted.

He describes this city as being in fact two towns.

He describes this city as being in fact two towns, one Russian and one Chinese, separated by a broad open space between them. The trade is carried on by batter, and here the Chinese duty is collected. A large quantity of teas and silks are, however, smuggled across the frontier farther west. At Kiachta the trade is conducted with great secrecy, as to details, each merchant keeping the secrets of his business to himself, they being family heir-looms, and as such descend from father to son. Mr. McCollins adds that the country in that vicinity is very quiet and peacefully disposed, and the Chinese merchants gave very little importance to the stories about intestine difficulties in the central provinces or the attacks of outside barbarians in the South. At Pekin everything was reported to be exceedingly quiet.

At Kiachta a large dinner was given to the Consul, at which the officials and a large number of Russians and Chinese merchants assisted. Mr. McCollins and the Chinese merchants assisted. He describes this city as being in fact two towns Russians and Chinese merchants assisted. Mr. Mc Collins made a speech, in which he explained to them the advantages of the new route of trade through the Amoor river which he hoped to open to much cheaper than by the present laborious and costly process of land carriages across Siberia, which took from four to twelve months according to the season. This suggestion was well received by both parties. The Emperor of Russia, the Emperor of China, and the President of the United States were each toasted and loudly cheered.

Mr. McCollins will proceed to the banks of the Amoor by land, and then take water conveyance down that stream to its mouth. He states that advices have been received at Irkontsk that vessels drawing fourteen feet of water have entered the drawing fourteen feet of water have entered the drawing fourteen feet of water have entered the Amoor river, through a channel which had before been considered accessible only to vessels of very shallow draught. During the entire journey he has been received and treated in the most cordial manner by the Russian officials, and speaks in high terms of their good will to him as an American, and to Americans generally. They seem to be quite wellto Americans generally. They seem to be quite well-informed as to our affairs and our increase as a nation .- N. Y. Herald.

MONDAY EVENING, MAY 25, 1857.

The pearl fishery excitement in New Jersey continues unabated, and many persons have abandoned respectable and profitable callings to delve in the mud of the banks near Paterson, for pearl muscles. The majority have met with disappointment, while a few have been successful, and pearls are reported as having been found, ranging in value from 25 cents to $1,000. One of the pearls has been sold to Tiffany & Co., of New York for $900, and is valued by the present holder at $1,500. A young man obtained five small but very fine pearls, some ten years ago, but not knowing what they were, kept them till the present discovery, when taking them to Tiffany & Co. he receives $250 for them. Five gentlemen on Great Notch Brook, near Paterson, have a hundred pearls. Some 40 years ago, it is stated, this pearl fishery was known, but for some reason was not prosecuted to any extent. One resident in the neighborhood had heard his father say that when a boy he had seen large shiny substances found in the oysters in the neighborhood, which were used as playthings among the children, and although now known to be pearls of value, were no more esteemed at the time referred to than pretty marbles. The first pearl this season was found in a muscle, after boiling, and had it not been ruined by the heat it is thought would have been worth several thous-

"MUMMY" OR EGYPTIAN WHEAT .- At one of the last meetings of the Academie des Sciences, at Paris, M. Guerin Mineville produced a number of wheat stalks of more than seven feet in height, each of them bearing splendid ears. This fine species of wheat was obtained from five grains that were found in an Egyptian tomb, where for thousands of years they had been preserved from all external influence. Sown in 1849, they grew up luxuriantly and yielded a 1200 fold produce, in consequence of which M. Drouillard made various comparative experiments in Southern and Central France and in Brittany, which experiments have been regularly continued and their results officially confirmed.

One-half of a field was sown with the Egyptian, the other with our common wheat, and the produce of the former was 60 fold, of the latter 15 fold, while commonly in France a seven or eight fold produce is considered a fair one. Sown in single grains, the Egyptian wheat yielded a 556 fold harvest. The experiments are now made in always increasing extension, and not less than 1,000 kilogrammes (2;200 pounds) of "mummy" wheat have been sown this year in the sub-department of Morlaix.

A NEW OIL. - A new article, called "Refined Cotton Seed Oil," has been introduced into the market, for burning and machinery purposes. It is a handsome oil, and sells at $1 to $1 03 per gallon, bleached at $1 10, and the crude article at 60 to 70. Cotton makes an immense quantity of seed, the only use for which, heretofore, has been as manure. There has been much talk for several years past of crushing it for oil, but the general opinion has been that it did not contain enough oil to make a paying business. Recently two mills have been put into operation for this purpose, one at New Orleans and the other at Providence. The public have not yet been informed whether the oil is good enough or abundantly sufficient to make the crushing of this seed a profitable business. Some sanguine calculators at the South have, in times past, estimated that the seed would produce the planter, when it came to be used for oil, half as much as the cotton itself.

FRENCH BANKRUPTS .- The French laws are very severe against bankrupts; and when the Credit Mobilier mania collapses, many distinguished individuals will find themselves in a tight place. The recent examination of the books of Leroy de Chabrol & Co. by the Commissioners in Bankruptcy brings to light that they gambled annually in stocks to the amount of $40,000,000. Their losses the year they failed were $600,000. Leroy gave his mistress, a fashionable lorette, $10,000 once as a New Year's IMPORTANT COMMERCIAL DECISION .- A case has just been decided in the United States Supreme Court, where a load of corn delivered at New York fell short of the bill of lading 240 bushels. The defendants proved that they delivered all the corn they received, and that in New York grain was sold by weight. Judge Taney decided that it was necessary to deliver the same number of bushels in New York that was received in Baltimore, and ju ment was given for plaintiff in $265 and costs.

Havana correspondents represent the slave trade as flourishing. A British ship, named the Dutchess of Sutherland, had landed six hundred Africans near Sagua la Grande, and was then burned to the water's edge. There were a dozen vessels in the port of Havana up for sale as slavers.

The preprietors of the leading hotels of New York have raised the price of hotel fare from $2 50 to $3 per day. Most of the second class houses have raised the fare from $2 to $250 per day.

Judge Thomas Cunningham, of Pennsylvania, has resigned his position as a Judge on the Supreme Bench of Kansas Territory.

BUILDING OPERATIONS IN NEW YORK .- The New York Journal of Commerce gives a resume of the building operations now going on in that city. The total amount invested in this way the present spring will be about six million dollars. First on the list Is Amos R. Eno, hotel, at a cost of half a million; next comes the banking house of the Bank of Commerce, cost $40,000; American Exchange Bank, $150,000; Bank of New York, $125,000; American Exchange Bank, $150,000; Peter Cooper's Union, $300,000; Stewart's enlargement, $200,000; Dr Spring's Church, $140,000; and stores and houses from $100,000 downward. The Journal of Commerce says:

Marble continues to be the favorite material for the construction of warehouses, with a strong infu-sion of iron; while brown-stone, its less ostentatious but more sombre rival, is decidedly preferred for priv te residences.

REAL ESTATE IN SAN FRANCISCO .- As an example in the fall of prices in San Francisco, a correspondent, writing under date of the 18th of April,

A certain hotel in this city, once leased at $72,-000 a year, is now let at $7,200, or 10 per cent. of the first sum; think to what disasters a man might be easily led, predicating his movements upon the first named income! Not far from where I write there is a building under lease at $30 per month that once paid $400 a month. But these instances are so common—the ruin and wreck in real estate long since so general, that they have ceased to attract rotice.

ROYAL COLLOGUY. - The following squib was fired some years ago. Without pretensions to prophecy, it is entitled to more credit than much that makes such pretensions, as being more applicable after than before the events hinted at. It is possible, however, that the consternation described as having overtaken one of the speakers has abated ere this, on the principle by which the fishwoman excused the seeming inhumanity of skinning eels alive-"Bless you, they's used to it!"

The following incident, which our genial and racy contemporary of the Chicago Journal rescues from oblivion, embodies certainly one of the most extraordinary tributes ever paid to Niagara:

Several years ago we chanced to be at Utica, the rural city of the Empire State, when John Quincy Adams arrived there en route for the West. Warm was the welcome in waiting for the venerable statesman. By the light of torches, and a multitude for retinue, he was accompanied to his lodgings, from the balcony of which he briefly, and, with a simplicity almost child-like, acknowledged the counters.

seeking no distinction and coveting no new honor, he was on his way to the Cataract of Niagara. And, said he, it may awaken a passing inquiry why an aged man, pausing on the confinee of two worlds, should wander away from the graves of his fathers to play the tourist. Thinking one day, he added, of the great Future upon which he should so soon enter, it occurred to him that perhaps he might meet in some bright realm a radiant spirit who would accost him with the inquiry whence he came.

"From the planet Earth," he mustreply. To the angel-further questioning he would answer: "from the great Republic of that world—the United States of America."

"And I thought," continued the old man, "what could I say were he to ask me if I had seen Niagara—Niagara where God has poured the flood from the hollow of His hand, and to which He has whispered the feeblest syllable of His power. It seemed to me," he said, "that I should blush to give the answer in—never!"

Gone abroad without beholding one of God's grandest works at home! Set forth upon a tour, from world to world, Niagara unseen!

So, I am here, he said, a pilgrim to the West. And who shall say that in that thought beauty and truth did not kiss each other? How many intelligenceshave closed their cyce upon this glorious world—this splendid portal to the great temple of the Universe—ignorant of the tapestry that adorns its walls and the very Mosaic of its threshold.

The venerable and accomplished Rob't Walsh. Esq., thus refers, in one of his recent letters to the Journal of Commerce, to Alison's last volume of the History of Europe:

the History of Europe:

Sir Archibald Alison's sixth volume of the History of Europe, since the fall of Napoleon, is of six hundred and eighty instructive pages. I have read it as aid to thorough recollection of the events of the years of which he treats. He deals with France from 1837 to 1841; England from the accession of Sir Robert Peel to the fall of the Peel Ministry, in 1835; from this year to the accession of Queen Victoria, in 1837; from the restoration of the Whig Ministry in 1835; from the restoration of the Whig Ministry to their fall in 1841. These are important annals, with a great variety of occurrences and aspects which should be impressed on the memory of every one who would duly understand the subsequent periods. The two most interesting and opportune sections of the volume—upwards of two hundred pages—are devoted to Anglo-Indian history. Sir Archibald reverts to the origin and progress of the British power, establishments, military and civil, legislation and political government; he narrates the first war with the Burmese, and particularly the disastrous expedition against Afighanistan; he has adapted his inquiries and matter as far as this was normal and practicable to the Oriental questions of the present era. In general, his chapters rest on the recent publications of most authority. He appears with the old recommendations and faults, clear and ample exposition, redundant and loose style, some old Tory prejudices and peculiar theories which no criticism will ever force him to abandon. The early condition, constant advances, incalculable resources and bright prospects of the Canadas are well exhibited; the United States obtain a considerable share of his attention—American paper currency (1837–38-39), President Jackson and his conflict with the Bank of the United States, the aristocracy of the towns and the democracy in the country, the violence of the party strift, the repudiation of State debts, the fillbustering spirit—are all recorded with special views, some of which seem to me just, ot

The Grand Duke Constantine, of Russia, has been on a visit at Paris. Of course the efforts to entertain him were magnificent, though excessively studied and formal. The following amusing incident, however, was thrown in by fortune, greatly to the relief of the royal visitor:

At the theater, in one of the acts of a grand opera, an enormous white cat came on the stage, and "cut many droll capers" for some time, during which scene-shifters and most of the corps de ballet ineffectually endeavored to drive off the animal. At length one of them was heard to exclaim: "It must be the Devil!" "No," cried a voice from the pit, "though the theater be his favorite recort, he never appears in a white robe!" The episode scemed to amuse his Highness and suite more than the regular performance.

The Paris correspondent of the New York Commercial thus describes the Grand Duke:

Constantine is thirty years of age, and I was able to verify for myself what many of my friends who had been in hasia had asserted, that he would be taken for an American. He is about the middle size, thin, and straight; his hair is blonde, and he wears light favoris joined to a moustache. He has a proud, quick, nervous air, and an occasional gla. We that partakes of the bold, or, more properly speaking, the impertment. The potraits our pictorials have published, and which you may see, do not resemble him in any particular.

MEHEMET BLY. - Mr. Walsh, in a late letter from Paris, lifts the yeil from this scoundrelly here as follows:

You mention, in a recen, editorial article on the Russian war against Circassia, the at Pointment at Commander in Chief of the brave tribes in the Caucassus, of a Hungarian officer, Col. Bangya, who had turned, Museulman and taken the title of Mehemet Bey. A few evenings ago, I asked a Hungarian gentleman, who was one of the heads of the Revolutionary government, in his country, to afford me some information concerning this new chief of the Circassians. He replied that Bangya had fought with gallantry for the Revolutionary cause, but, soon after the war, secretly made his own peace with the Austrian rulers, and then came to Paris as an exile, where he was regarded as an Austrian spy by all the Hungarian refugees. My informant averred that he had occasion personally to know the fact, and, moreover, he had not the least doubt that the renegade the Mehemet Ali—had sold himself to Russia, and would betray the mountaineers. His apostacy from the Christian religion is not a violent presumption in his favor.

MRS. JULIA DEAN HAYNE .- The San Francisco Alta California of the 20th ult. states:

The many ardent personal friends and more numerous professional admirers of Mrs. Julia Dean Hayne will be gratified to learn that she has selected this city as her permanent home. Some time since a neat and cozy cottage, on the corner of Powell and California streets, was purchased, which is now occupied by her liege lord, her little one, and herself.

That Case of Remarkable Endurance.—The Rochester Union is informed that Mr. Ellis, the elderly gentleman who severed his windpipe forty-one days since in a fit of despondency, is still living, though he has taken no nourishment since he committed the act. We are assured that nothing has passed into the stomach of Mr. E., either solid or fluid, for forty one days except it may have been four days except it may have been four days as each standard of the stomach of Mr. E., either solid or fluid, for forty one days except it may have been four days as a few days as a few days as a few days are for the stomach of Mr. E. and the stomach of the stomach of Mr. E., either solid or fluid, for for-ty-one days except it may have been a few drops of water at one time. He has been gradually sinking and wasting away, but until within a week past he has not complained of being hungry. Some food in a fluid state has been put in his mouth but it runs from the wound in his throat and nothing reaches the stomach—at least so his physicians believe. His endurance is remarkable and can hardly be ex-pected to continue much longer. It appears to us that the case is one that should be noted for the medical profession in detail.

The sutjoined account of the origin and present condition of the Russian representation at Pekin will be read with particular interest at the present moment. It is from the New York Journal of Commerce and is no doubt substantially correct:

merce and is no doubt substantially correct:

The history of Russia's representation at that capital, as we understand it, is simply this: By a treaty with China hi 1728, Russia was permitted to maintain a "clerical" mission at Pekin—for the purpose of promulgating the doctrines of the Greek Church within the circle of certain Russian reldiers, who were taken prisoners in 1885 at Albaan, on the Amour, and carried to Pekin, where they were formed into a body-guard of the Bogdokan. Until quite recently, the mission seems to have been of a character purely religious—not political. Few of its transactions were known to the world until within the last three years—since their publication in several large volumes at St. Petersburg.

Since 1848, the town of Kiachta, on the northern frontier of China, has become an important place, in consequence of the greatly increased traffic between Russia and that empire; and it is now regarded as the Russian capital of the frontier region. It is about nine hundred miles north of Pekin, to which city there is a regular post-route; and it now has a military commandant and a civil governor. It is correctly said by the Berlin correspondent of the London Times that "Russia has continued to obtain concessions and acquisitions from China, until she is now enabled, in an emergency, to lead an army to Pekin, either from the north, or, in the summer time, down the Amour, in small steamers, which she already possesses there, and thence to the Petho river, where it would reach Pekin from the south."

It is said, upon good authority, that the entire personnel of the So-called "clerical" mission at Pekin is undergoing.

It is said, upon good authority, that the entire personnel of the so-called "clerical" mission at Pekin is undergoing, or has already undergone, an entire change. Secular officials as well as clerical, with men of letters and science, composed the party which lately relieved the post, and their numbers may be estimated from the fact that the weight of their luggage, transported from Russia to the Chines capital, is stated to have been sixty thousand pounds.

Chings capital, is stated to have pounds.

Thus has the influence of Russia been felt at Pekin more than one hundred and seventy years, and never to so great an extent as recently. Although the mission has ever been denominated a "clerical" one, and has been maintained ostensibly for literary and religious parposes, it were idle to doubt its great political influence and power. Perhaps the fact of its having been established so long before the making of our treaty with China, may be a bar to our claim for similar privileges under stipulations prospective in their character.

THE SCOTCH POISONING CASE.—Readers will The Scotch Poisoning Case.—Readers will peruse with amazement the accounts of the alleged murder of her lover by Miss Madeline Smith, the daughter of an eminent architect in Glasgow, with about £4,000 a year. The young lady is only in her nineteenth year, is extremely pretty, and has always dressed, not only in the most expensive style, but in the most gorgeous manner. All her relations are of the highest respectability, and she moved in the best circles of society in the west of Scotland. She is talented and accomplished, as well as handsome. Her education, which she finished at Paris, was of the very highest order. The French gentleman, named Angellier, to whom she French gentleman, named Angellier, to whom she was engaged to be married, and whom she is charg-ed with having murdered by poisoning him, is described as having been in every way a very interestscribed as having been in every way a very interesting person.

Another gentleman, exceeding wealthy, not knowing that Miss Smith was already affianced, proposed to and was accepted by her. The prevailing belief in Scotland is, that the reason why she had recourse to poisoning her first lover, instead of breaking off the engagement, under some pretext or other—for which so clever a person could have been at no loss—was, that had she married the other while M. Angellier was alies the latter could have while M. Angellier was alive, the latter could have made some revelations which might have caused grave misunderstandings between herself and hus-band. We are informed that she and M. Angellier had been privately married. It is stated, the give it only as a report, that the father of the young lady has become deranged, in consequence of the awful position in which she is placed. But she still displays in prison the most extraordinary coolness ary, in which is recorded, with much minuteness, the transactions of each day, and all the incidents in his somewhat discreditable life. The remarkable contents of that diary will most likely be disclosed

How to Select Flour.—1. Look at its color, if it is white, with a slightly yellowish or straw-colored tine, buy it. If it is very white, with a colored tine, how it, If it is very white, with a bluish cast, or with black specks in it, reads to.

2. Examine its adhesiveness; wet and knead a little of it between your fingers; if it works soft and sticky, it is poor. Flour made from spring wheat is likely to be sticky.

3. Throw a little lump of dry flour against a dry, smooth, perpendicular surface; if it adheres in a lump, the flour has life in it; if it falls like powder, it is bad.

4. Squeeze some of the flour in your hand; if it retains the shape given it by the pressure, that, too, is a good sign. Flour that the pressure, that, too, is a good sign. Flour that will stand all these tests it is safe to buy. These modes are given by old flour dealers, and we make no apology for printing them, as they pertain to a matter that concerns everybody, namely, the quality of the "staff of life."

Sales of Public Lands .- When lands have once been offered at public sale they are laid open to private sale at a minimum of $1 25 per acre. Thereafter, in the process of time, they go through a graduation in price down to 12½ cents per acre. In the progress of business at the local land offices it freprogress of business at the local land omces it frequently happens that sales or locations are erroneously or illegally made, and are consequently cancelled. The question often arises whether tracts so situated can be purchased or entered by others without further proceedings. The General Land Office holds that in such cases before new sales, or locations can be made, the lands must be reinstated in market after at least 30 days' notice, so as to afford free competition and an opportunity to all alike to obtain the land.—Wash. A Model Husband .- A Paris correspondent of the Boston Post tells a tale of a gambling, dissipated, debauched husband, whose wife was beloved by a rich baron, and loved him in return, but discouraged his attention. The husband, knowing that he had his attention. The husband, knowing that he had reduced her to misery, resolved to remove the only obstacle to her happiness by destroying himself, and leaped from a precipice in the Pyrennees. Few husbands, says the admiring correspondent, would have been capable of so generous a proceeding, and it is said the ladies generally speak of his noble self-devotion in terms of the highest admiration, and quote it on all occasions with the warmest enthusiasm, in hones that the example may prove contagious, and hopes that the example may prove contagious, and become a general fashion. Amiable and charming illusion.

It having been discovered that the United States steamer Michigan, on the lakes, is one or two tons larger than the size allowed by a treaty between Great Britain and the United States, and Lord Napier having called the attention of our government to the matter, orders have been given to discontinue her in her present capacity. The Michigan has been of great service in assisting vessels, British as well as our own, in distress; and in view of the chances of losing her, the attention of the Canadian Parliament has been called to the fact. The Canadians ment has been called to the fact. The Canadians say they are not at all afraid of the extraordinary size of the little steamer, and trust, so far as they are concerned, they are very much in favor of her remaining where she is.

It is said of Dean Swift, that he preached before the merchant tailor's company at three several anniversaries. The first time he took for his text—"Steal no more." This is a purely vegetable compound, prepared onstrictly scientific principles, after the manner of the celebrated Holland Professor, Boerhave. Because of its great success in most of the European States, its introduction into the United States was intended more especially for those of our fatherland scattered here and there over the face of this mighty country. Meeting with great success among them, I now offer it to the American public, knowing that its truly wonderful medicinal virtues must be acknowledged.

its truly wonderful medicinsi virtues must be absented edged.

It is particularly recommended to those persons whose constitutions may have been impaired by the continuous use of ardent spirits, or other forms of dissipation. Generally instantaneous in its effect, it finds its way directly to the seat of life, thrilling and quickening every nerve, raising up the drooping spirit, and, in fact, infusing new kealth and visor in the system.

NOTICE—Whoever expects to find this a beverage will be disappointed; but to the cick, weak, and low spirited it will prove a grateful aromatic cordial, possessed of singular remedial properties. CAUTION.

The great popularity of this delightful Aroma has induced many imitations, which the public should guard against purchasing. Be not persuaded to buy anything else until you have given Boerhave's Holland Bitters a fair trial. One bottle will convince you how infinitely superior it is to all these imitations.

[For the Louisville Journal.] USURY-CONCLUDED.

Whilst usury laws restrict the interest for the use of money to a given rate, and whilst they restrain you from buying from your neighbor his own note at a rate of interest greater than that established by you from buying from your neighbor his own note at a rate of interest greater than that established by law, they do not restrain you from selling a given amount of gold for double the amount in silver. Nor do they restrain you from buying the note of a third party from your neighbor for half its face. Now, if your neighbor has not the right to sell his own note at any price his interest might dictate, by what principle of common sense can that right be transferred to a third party?

Usury laws do not restrain you from buying or borrowing land, cotton, gold, or silver, and selling or returning them, as the case may be, at any rate of profit or interest that you may contract for, however large. Yet usury law-makers may fancy that there is a great distinction between these articles and coin, and between selling and lending, and that it would be both immoral and impolitic to allow the same freedom of traffic in the one as in the other. This distinction is about as novel as that made by a certain Irish Magistrate. One Patrick McCarthy sued one Michael O'Flaherty before Esquire Gilpatrick for ejecting him from his house; McCarthy proved that O'Flaherty ejected him by saying—"Come out of my house, Mr. McCarthy," where upon the esquire gave judgment for damages against O'Flaherty. In delivering his opinion he contended that there was a vast difference between, "Come out of my house, Mr. McCarthy," and "Mr. McCarthy, come out of my house." The first, said he, was a command, while the last was a request merely.

Unless usury laws can be successfully evaded, request merely.

Unless usury laws can be successfully evaded, their inevitable effect is to drive money to other States, where interest is not restricted, or where the States, where interest is not restricted, or where the legal rate is higher, and therefore instead of protecting the borrower, they oppress him, for, in proportion as money is driven away, will it be harder to borrow, being scarcer, and the borrower will be obliged not only to pay an advanced rate, but he will also have to pay for the risk the lender runs in violating the law.

will also have to pay for the risk the lender runs in violating the law.

But those who take the other side of the question will probably say that the money lender would take advantage of the necessity of the borrower if there were no usury laws to protect him. But they must bear in mind that the privilege which the lender enjoys is not special. Every man may, if he chooses, convert the proceeds of his labor into money and wait "for a good time coming" when he can make a large interest on his capital. Other men prefer to invest their means in lands or some of the great stanles of the country and realize a much larger ininvest their means in lands or some of the great staples of the country and realize a much larger interest than money would have yielded. In this they have greatly the advantage of the man who holds his means in money. This too is a privilege that everybody may enjoy. It may so happen that men who, instead of investing in money, invest in pork, may say, "Thank God, I'm not like other people," without the risk of being called a fool by the money lender.

It is sometimes argued that the money lender would exact an exorbitant rate of interest when the borrower's property is in legal jeopardy. Well, in all such cases the question of profit and loss presents itself. If the borrower will lose less by borrowing the money to pay his debt than he would by suffering the sacrifice of a forced sale, it would actually be a cruelty to him to interpose a usury law suffering the sacrifice of a forced sale, it would actually be a cruelty to him to interpose a usury law which would induce the money lender to buy the property rather than to loan his money at the legal rate of interest. In such a case the money lender is actuated by the same motive as the man who invests in flour. The motive in both cases is gain. Nor can all the usury laws in the wide world lessen the advantage that in such a case the money lender has over the unfortunate debtor. And to say that such a case is hard is only to remind us that such is the imperfect condition of all things human that under any system of society and laws there must be hard cases. It is not a good argument against the imperfect condition of all things human that under any system of society and laws there must be hard cases. It is not a good argument against usury to say that there are Shylocks among money lenders, for a man who possesses none of the human feelings which would induce him to relieve a poor fellow-man from monetary distress would not open his hand to feed the starving.

If usury is a fraud, or even a great wrong, let us inquire who the parties to the fraud or wrong are. The borrower and lender are doubtless the guilty parties. They comprise the whole mercantile community; and, they being merely the representatives or agents of the general producer, the whole community are parties to the fraud or wrong. Now, to prove that usury is either fraudulent or wrong, it must be shown that it affects the borrower or lender injuriously. That it does not injure the lender, is a point conceded by everybody; and to prove that it does not operate to the disadvantage of the borrower generally, it seems to me to be only necessary to observe the significant tact, that, when money is very abundant and interest, consequently, low, the most daring, reckless, and disastrous speculations are entered into. When money is scarce and interest high, men are not apt to plunge headlong into doubtful speculations. The public domain is not grasped and held for speculation by the rich to the great detriment of the poor producer. It is not, then, the high rate of interest that the people pay that causes the wide-spread ruin which so often befalls us. By the mere competition of money, the price of real estate and the great staples of the country are By the mere competition of money, the price the great staples of the country are run up far beyond the point justified by a healthy consumptive demand, and the ruin which necessari-ly follows cannot, of course, be attributed to usury. If the country desires to get rid of the commercial revolutions caused so frequently by such transactions, let her put down all banks of issue and keep the legal standard of value pure and wholesome, and leave tt free and untrammeled by restrictive laws.

Were it only by the effect that we could correctly adjudge a cause like this, New York would furnish all the proof needed; for I will venture to assert that there is more usury committed in that city every day than there is in any ten States in the Union and yet she is the greatest emporium of the greatest and most prosperous State in the country. Her usury law is a dead letter, although its violation involves a forfeiture of the principal and interest. It has been asserted that men who live on the interest of their money are drones, and that the law ought to restrict interest to a very law return order.

ought to restrict interest to a very low rate in order engage in some useful labor. If the industrious bee, who has labored diligently throughout the long summer to lay up her winter's store, can be called a drone, then such men are drones. But admit for the sake of argument that they are drones. How can you force them to labor or to invest their money in any particular business by usury laws? If the rate is so low that the interest on a man's money will not support him, he will, of course, convert his cash into houses and lots, lands, or other species of property, and live on the rents. And where is the difference and live on the rents. And where is the difference whether he invests his money in active business or loans it to some one who does so? A man who is worth half a million will not work unless he does so for diversion or from motives of avarice, and, un-less you make it unlawful either to take any interest at all for the use of money or to receive rent or hire for property, or unless you confiscate his pro-perty, you cannot effect the end proposed. But to adopt any of these measures would be to destroy all incentive to labor or economy; for if the rich must work, whether they will or not, it would be just as well to be poor and let each day provide for i VERITAS.

give a stability and confidence on all sides, that have not been felt for many months.

At the stock board the bears have undisputed sway, and sales are lower than since the time of Eric quoting at 39, which was followed by a sudden rise so disastrous to the bears. These extreme panies are especially to be regretted bringing, as they do, losses upon outsides holders, who have to realize without regard to prices. Among the speculators what is one's loss is another's gain; but these panies injure confidence in the best stocks, and in effect last longer than many are aware. We are of the opinion that the worst has been seen.

The same paper says of teas: At the public sale of greens, to-day, nearly the whole cat-alogue was disposed of at very satisfactory prices. An ad-vance of 4@5c was established on the finer grades of young hyson, while medium and ordinary grades realized full, if not slightly better prices.

CINCINNATI, May 23, P. M. Flour advanced to $7 25@$7 30 for superfine; receipts very light. No change in grain. Whisky has advanced to 30% and very firm. Bacon shoulders sold at 10%—a fur-ther advance, and holders generally refuse to sell except at a marked advance for all kinds and the market closed a good deal unsettled; a sale of 1,500 kegs lard was made at 14%c.

New York, May 23, P. M. Cotton market firm—sales of 7,500 bales. Flour heavysales of 1,350 bbls. Wheat is heavy—sales of 8,000 bush. Corn dull at a decline of 1c—sales of 20,000 bush. Pork is heavy. Bacon firm and scarce, quoting at 11½(£12½c for sides, 10½(£11c for hams, and 9½c for shoulders. Butter heavy at 19@23c. Linseed oil declined 1c, quoting at 80c. Sugar dull. Rice advanced %c, quoting at 4%@5%. Lead quiet. Hemp is slow of sale but prices unsettled. Tobacco has been very firm, but, except in Kentucky Leaf (the recent importations of which contain a lower class than had previously been on the market), quotations have undergone no change: say—Virginia Leat, 7½ d to 11d; strips, 11d to 15d; Kentucky leaf, 6d to 11d; strips, 11d to 15d; Kentucky leaf, 6d to 11d; strips, 11d to 15d; Maryland (sound), 6½ d to 9½ d.

Breadstuffs—Owing to the prevalence of easterly winds, vessels have been prevented from entering port, and the receipts of grain and flour during the week have been inconsiderable. The improvement noticed last week has been still farther stimulated by diminished stocks, the general healthy tone of country markets, the enhanced value of English wheat, and reported advances on the Continent. The trade, although more extensive than for some time past, has been more legitimate because more influenced by actual demand than by the operations of speculators—this is especially true of wheat and four. Wheat has been largely dealt in by millers and for Ireland, the demand running mainly upon red, upon which an advance of 3d to 4d has been established within the week. Western Canal four, owing to its lower price, has been more freely taken than the better grades of Ohio, and has advanced Is per bbl. Indian corn has been quite irregular, its value depending upon the demand at the moment, ultimately settling at 35e for mixed.

The deliveries by farmers for the week ending 2d inst., were 109,809 grs., at an average of 54s 1d: against 101,850 grs., at 56s 6d, for the corresponding week of last year.

At this day's market the attendance of country dealers was not large, and yet there was a moderate business done in wheat and flour for consumption, at full prices, the market loss of the season, and the want of vegetables. Prices have been feebly sustained, and on the less 50 to 57s 6d, short, ribbed, 57s to 58s 6d. Indian corn, mixed, 35s; yellow, 35s 6d; white, 35s 6d to 31s 6d
